

San Diego Electroglide -- January 19 January 2008

This is the first contest of the new schedule of having the monthly Electroglides on the 3rd Saturday of each month. From now on, there will be no confusion such as we had in the past, scheduling it on the Saturday following the General meetings of the SEFSD. Since I communicate to the Electrogliders only via e-mail, I expected that there would be a few who wouldn't get the word of the change, however, we had a fine turnout -- 11 to be exact! So, mark your calendars for the coming months. As I said, I think that we can easily and safely field 20 pilots for our mass launches, so those of you who have been holding back, come out and join us!

No lift at our field this Saturday, but the winds were calm and spot landings piled up the points. Zeke pulled ahead with a 20 pointer on his last flight to firmly solidify his lead. Fred Daugherty had a fine first two flights, but in preparation for his third had an unexpected motor start-up and a severe hand injury. Those small props can really get to you!

The next Electroglide will be held on February 16th with the first toss at 9:30.
